
It's a bit more complex. Since Google Lens does not provide us directly with the solution.

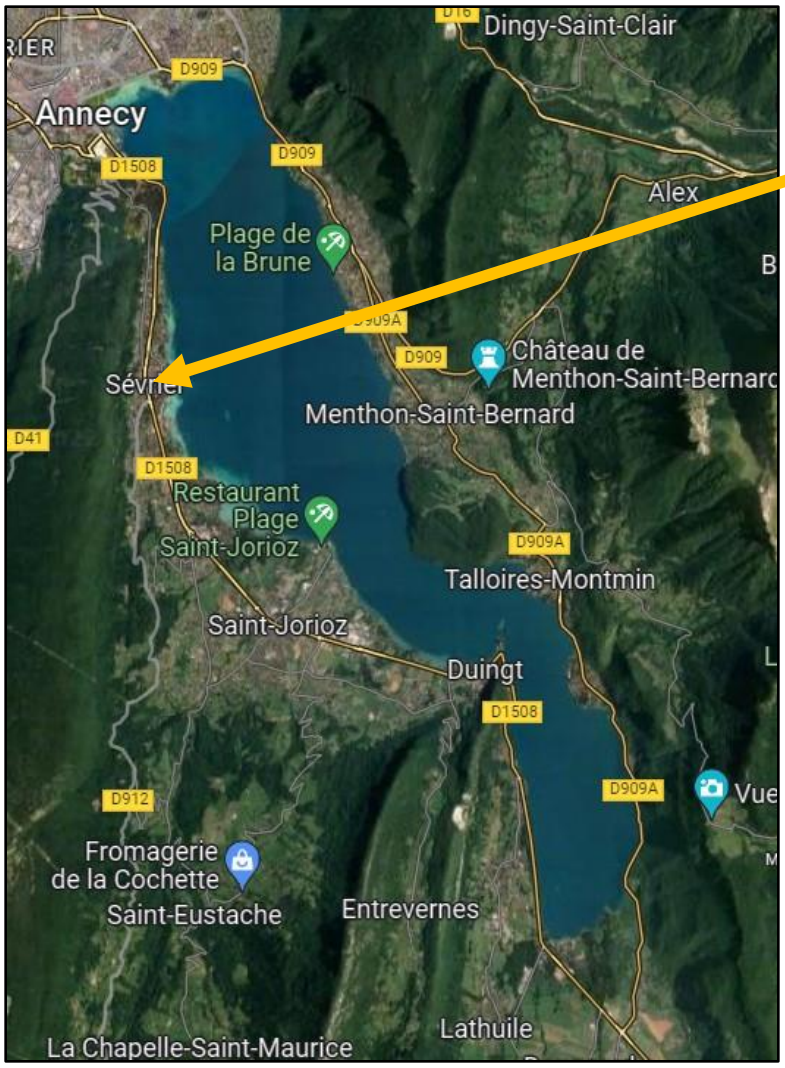
Concerning the statement, the only exploitable clue is that we want a French path name. This leads us to a look for a place in France.

From the picture, we can conclude that we are near a rather large mountain lake. The three biggest lakes of this type in France are in the northern Alps.

We could be at the lake of Geneva, the lake of Annecy or the lake of Bourget.

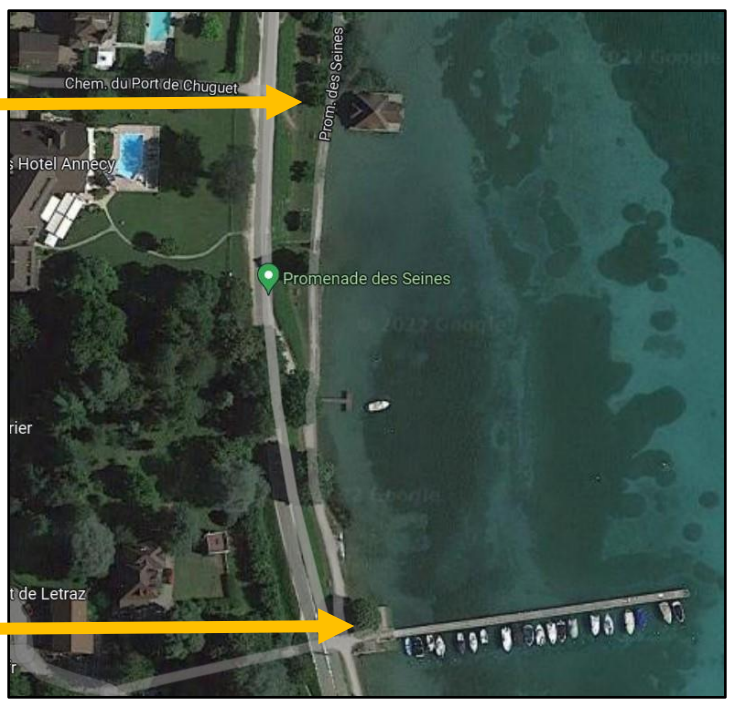
A search on Google Maps or Google Earth allows us to choose the lake of Annecy thanks to the shape of the mountains. We are on the western side of this one.

After a lot of research, we finally locate the exact place.



The location is on the northwestern side of the lake because of the view of the mountains

Following the coast, we eventually find the pointed building on the left of the picture.



And the pontoon.

This gives us :
